DIRECTOR'S NOTE

When I was in elementary school, we used to have a DEAR Day once every six weeks. DEAR stood for Drop Everything And Read: it was a full day devoted to literature and letting our minds run wild in our imagination. Being the avid reader I was (and still am), you can imagine the thrill emanating from eight year old me. I would bring 2 chapter books - often one I was currently reading, and the next in my TBR list - a blanket and a stuffy, and be content in my own world for seven hours. It was during DEAR that I had brought my dad's copy of Alice's Adventures in Wonderland and Through the Looking Glass. I always enjoyed the Disney cartoon, and I had a VHS live-recording of the 1999 TV movie (with Whoopi Goldberg!) and I would watch it over and over, so I knew I would like the novel. I remember being so enthralled in the world Lewis Carroll crafted, that I went home and continued to read until it was 2 am. I loved the silly nonsensical poems, the many different characters, the illustrations, and obviously, Alice! Her imagination was limitless and I felt like I was just like her! It very quickly became one of my favourite stories. Not to mention, it finally gave context to my dad's constant quoting of the The Walrus and The Carpenter poem!

Rereading it in preparation for the production really gave the story a whole new meaning in adulthood. The themes of self-discovery and learning to lean into your own brand of "madness" really spoke to me in a new way. My own journey of learning who I am and building my confidence in my own world of beliefs is one of the most important parts of my personal growth. While my job is to teach your students to perform in a theatrical setting, I fully believe that I'm teaching in everything I do - from the words I speak, to the actions I do in every class. I hope that they see someone who's not afraid to be herself and that helps them feel like they can truly be themselves!

Alice fully embraces who she is at the end of her travels in Wonderland and wakes up confident to be herself. While I know nothing can happen overnight, I do hope that I have helped build your students' confidence even a fraction of an inch each week we have met. This production has held its own set of unique challenges - from the venue changes to the music with tough rhythms and spelling - but I feel so proud of how hard the students have worked to make the journey through Wonderland exciting, fun, and filled with zaniness! Not only that, but I hope that they have developed a bond with their castmates and learned that each brand of "madness" we bring to class only adds to the beautiful ensemble piece you are about to view.

"But I don't want to go among mad people," Alice remarked.

"Oh, you can't help that," said the Cat: "we're all mad here. I'm mad. You're mad."

"How do you know I'm mad?" said Alice.

"You must be," said the Cat, "or you wouldn't have come here."

Enjoy the mad adventure down the rabbit hole. :)
